VERY IMPORTANT INFORMATION

In line with all UK Insurance intermediaries, it is the legal obligation of London Marine Insurance Services Ltd. to make certain that the Assured is aware of the duty of disclosure and possible consequences of its breach.

The Underwriters understand that the Assured has supplied them with complete and accurate information on the risk. Any piece of information must be provided, which could influence the Underwriters' judgement when determining whether to quote terms for the risk and, if positive, which should be the scope of cover and level of premium. If it subsequently transpires that there has been any failure to make such a disclosure, the Underwriters may have grounds for avoiding the contract and/or refusing to pay any claims hereunder. Please contact us as soon as possible if you have any reasons to believe that some information has been inadvertently withheld from the Underwriters' attention.

We would also ask you to check this document carefully to ensure that the insurance evidenced hereby is in accordance with your instructions and that the insurers with whom it has been placed meet your approval. Unless we hear from you to the contrary within 14 days from the date of the receipt of this document, it will be taken that this document, including its participating security, is entirely in order.
